

Chennamma's wellbeing

Nalagati Venkata Chennamma was born with visual and intellectual impairment. Prohibitive costs and Chennamma's behavioural issues prevented the family from seeking medical treatment. At age 20, a mandatory government requirement to avail benefits for the visually impaired, revealed 100% blindness. But five years later, LVPEI's Field Rehabilitation Service Officer Karunakar spotted symptoms of cataract. His counselling led to Chennamma being brought to LVPEI's secondary centre at Markapuram where she was operated upon by Dr Nilesh Jaiswal for congenital cataract. She has regained functional vision and is now undergoing treatment at the Hyderabad campus for further enhancement of her vision. Her family expresses immense gratitude for LVPEI's care and concern in their daughter's wellbeing.

Little Pruthvi is the eyes of his parents

Like other children, Pruthvi enjoys going to school and playing. But unlike other 4-year olds, Pruthvi helps his parents with mundane tasks at home, a happiness that his family has secured thanks to the parents' vigilance.

Congenital cataract and delayed care had caused vision loss for Pruthvi's parents. Aware of the high risk involved, they had brought their baby over for a detailed eye check, right after his birth, and at the tender age of 6 weeks, Pruthvi had undergone a successful cataract surgery at LVPEI's Vijayawada campus.

The happy parents now no longer depend on Pruthvi's grandparents or uncle to escort them to the hospital for check-ups. "We now have Pruthvi to help us around," they proudly say.

"It is indeed inspiring and motivating to see how timely medical intervention can change the lives of a child and his family as well," says Dr Niranjana K Pehera.

My husband and I came to this hospital from Assam for the first time, with prior appointment over phone. We just loved the way the staff cooperated with us. I especially liked Dr Raja Narayanan and Dr Komal Agarwal who gave laser treatment to my husband. I really like the amount of patience they have for people like us who have never ending questions and doubts. Good job! God bless.

I heard a lot about LVPEI, and for the first time, went there to consult. The staff is very cooperative and understand well. Though the time taken for consultation was long, it was satisfactory. Cafeteria was spick and span and service was good. Well maintained stairs and walkways. You will never feel that you've been to hospital. The most interesting part is the greenery and rocks in the building - they will blow your mind.
