Donor Details

Sri L V Prasad

Some people leave such a profound impact during their lifetime that they are remembered for generations. One such legend is Akkineni Lakshmi Vara Prasada Rao, an Indian film producer, actor, director and cinematographer, popularly known as L V Prasad. A true man of cinema! In 1930, a 22-year-old Telugu-speaking L V Prasad ran away to Bombay from his village Somavarappadu, near Eluru in Andhra Pradesh to make a mark in theatre and cinema.

Beginning humbly as a gatekeeper at Mumbai's famous Dreamland Theatre, he went on to give Indian cinema many memorable box office hits. In 1982, he was awarded the prestigious Dadasaheb Phalke award for his remarkable contributions to Indian cinema. The road in Banjara Hills, Hyderabad, where his production lab stands, is named after him. It is a testimony to the impact he created and the affection and recognition he received.

L V Prasad's association with LVPEI dates back to 1985, well before the institute was founded in October 1986 and the first patients seen in June 1987. After the box office success of his film 'Ek Duje Ke Liye,' he wanted to donate the profits to a worthy cause. L V Prasad decided to donate rupees one crore and five acres of land in Banjara Hills, on knowing from his son Ramesh Prasad, of Dr Gullapalli N Rao's plans to start an eye institute in Hyderabad. In recognition of his gesture, the Board of the Hyderabad Eye Institute renamed the organization after him as the L V Prasad Eye Institute. There could not have been a better partnership.

Over the years, his family has continued to support the institute. His son, Mr Ramesh Prasad, Managing Director of Prasad Film Laboratories, is a founder trustee of LVPEI and is the longest serving member of the Hyderabad Eye Institute's governing board, along with Dr Rao. His grandson, Akkineni Sai Prasad, is also a member of the Board of Hyderabad Eye Institute.

Dr Kallam Anji Reddy

Dr Kallam Anji Reddy was a visionary, a scientist, an innovator, an entrepreneur, and most importantly, a humanitarian. He was an eternal optimist. Founder Chairman of the Hyderabad-based pharmaceutical major Dr Reddy's Laboratories (DRL), Dr Kallam Anji Reddy was the one who put India on the bulk drug map of the world. He single-handedly turned around an import dependent industry to be a self-reliant export-oriented industry that it is today. In 2011, he was honoured with the Padma Bhushan, the third highest civilian award in India, for his contribution to the Indian pharmaceutical industry.

He believed in the power of good intentions, and was particular that people should be treated with dignity. His association with LVPEI began in 1995, when he committed to make an annual donation to support cataract surgeries for the economically underprivileged, in his father's memory. His involvement in LVPEI's basic science research deepened with his support to the Kallam Anji Reddy Molecular Genetics Laboratory.

In 2007, the LVPEI Banjara Hills campus was named the Kallam Anji Reddy campus in recognition of his tremendous support. He was the Chairman of the Hyderabad Eye Research Foundation for six years, and in his honor the Dr Kallam Anji Reddy Distinguished Chair of Ophthalmology was created at LVPEI. His attitude is best exemplified by what he once told Dr Rao: "Don't worry about the money, just keep up the good work!"

The Dr Kallam Anji Reddy campus is connected to four vision centres at VST Ramnagar, Ramakrishna Math, CR Foundation-Kondapur and Calvary-Hyderabad, and to three city centres: Lahoti Eye Centre, Madhapur; Sai Life Sciences Eye Centre, Alwal; and Shirin, Etan and Tara Brown Eye Centre, Kismatpur.

Gullapalli Pratibha Rao Building

Smt Gullapalli Pratibha Rao

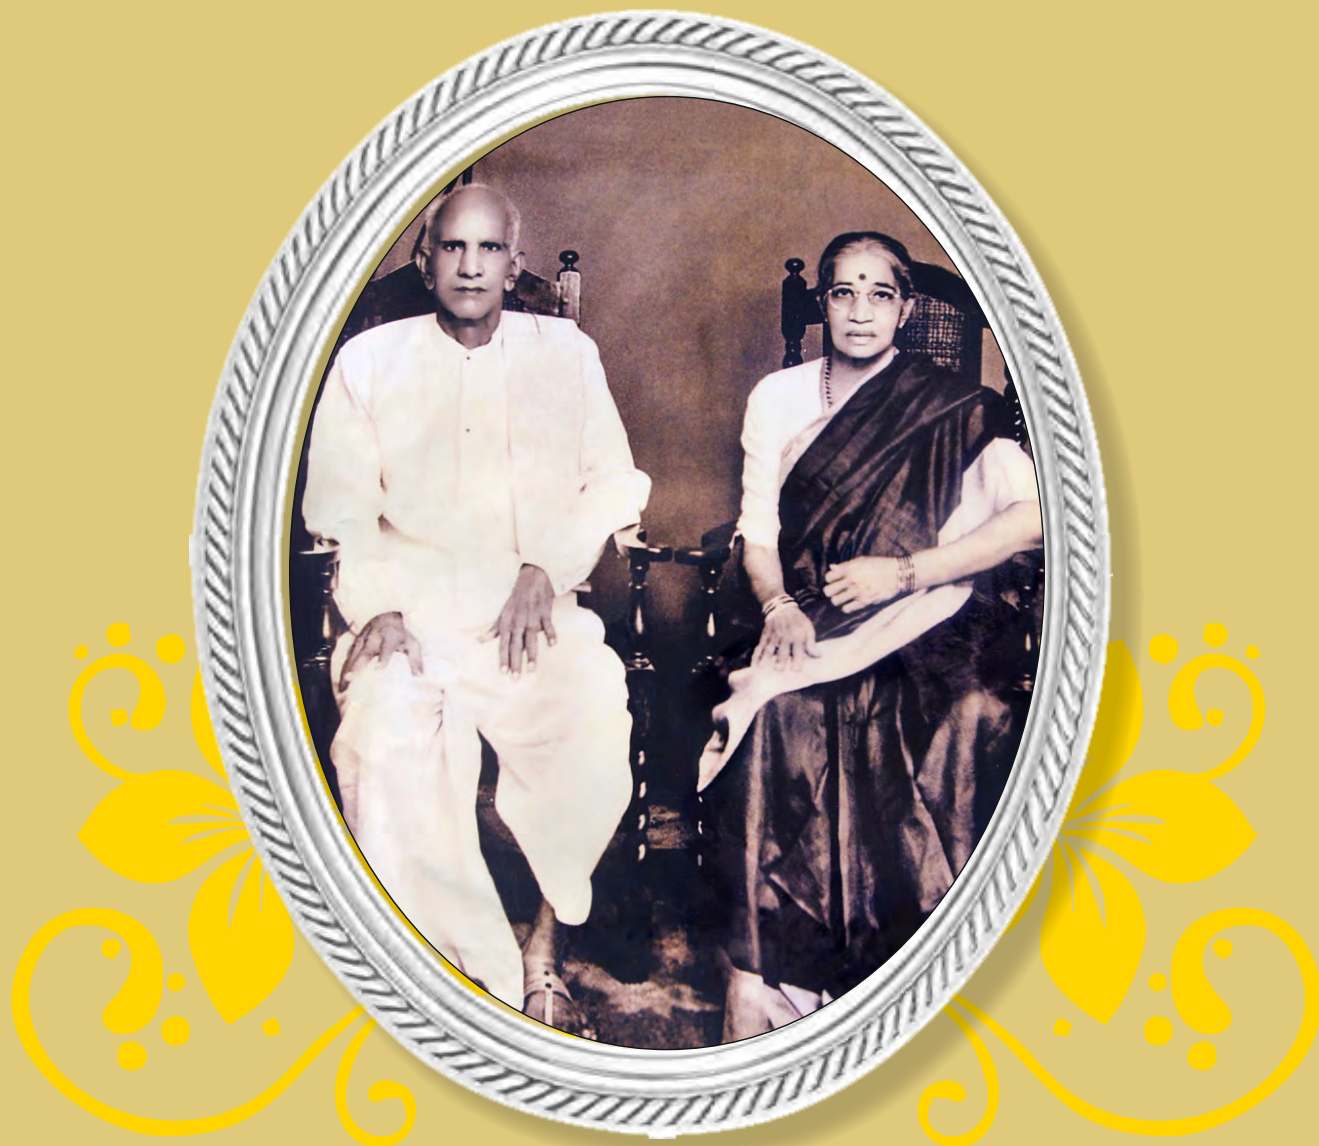

Smt Gullapalli Pratibha Rao has been a pillar of strength to her husband, Dr Gullapalli N Rao, Founder-Chair, L V Prasad Eye Institute - support that has helped him lead LVPEI with clear focus and dedication. Her commitment to the formation of LVPEI is best described by what she once said to Dr Rao, "I don't want you to ask anybody for any support."

From raising funds for the institute to single-handedly developing the entire aesthetic profile of the institute and working relentlessly to implement it, creating a unique LVPEI identity—a place that "does not look or feel like a hospital"—she played a key role in the establishment and development of the institute from way before its inception in 1987. She also contributed significantly to designing the framework of LVPEI's Education Centre and many other areas of the institute's functions.

Her role as Managing Editor of the Indian Journal of Ophthalmology was critical to transforming the journal from a struggling, low quality publication into a journal of international repute. She personally motivated the ophthalmic industry to partner with the IJO journal in the effort to enhance the image of Indian ophthalmology, thus arranging funds and making the journal financially sound. She is also one of the founders of the Loksatta Party, a civil society organization dedicated to governance reforms, where she played an important leadership role.

It is because of the commitment and perseverance of supporters like Smt Gullapalli Pratibha Rao that LVPEI stands tall internationally. In recognition of her unfailing support to LVPEI's growth, LVPEI's primary building at the Kallam Anji Reddy campus is named after her. So is the International Centre For Advancement of Rural Eye Care at Kismatpur, GPR ICARE.

Velamati Soubhagyavathamma Building

Smt Velamati Soubhagyavathamma & Sri Velamati Seetharamabrahmam

Parents of Sri V C Janardan Rao, Veljan Hydrair Ltd & Veljan Denison Ltd

A successful industrialist and a committed philanthropist, Sri V C Janardan Rao had earlier supported charitable educational institutions and hospitals in Hyderabad, Eluru, and his native village Kovvali in West Godavari district, Andhra Pradesh.

Sri Janardan Rao pioneered the manufacturing of fluid power equipment in the country. His two legacy companies - Veljan Hydrair Ltd and Veljan Denison Ltd, manufacture a wide range of pneumatic and hydraulic products, with an excellent export market.

A mutual friend, Sri Vellanki Rao introduced him to Dr Gullapalli Nageswara Rao. A subsequent visit to LVPEI's, Kallam Anji Reddy (KAR) campus convinced him to support the institute. His contribution was pivotal in creating the Velamati Soubhagyavathamma building, named after Sri Janardan Rao's mother, that has enhanced capacity for patient care at the KAR campus by 50 percent.

Sri Jagdish M Chanrai

Sri Jagdish M Chanrai, a successful and ambitious businessman, is known as a generous humanitarian and a philanthropist. His deep consciousness of the need to reduce inequity in society has given rise to his philosophy of "Caring Capitalism". With the vision to establish "Caring Capitalism® as a universally accepted philosophy and a mission to "Leverage business successes to eradicate curable blindness and reduce poverty," he brought together his extended family. This has guided his efforts to establish the Tulsi Chanrai Foundation in Nigeria and Mission for Vision in India. He is known for his penchant for analysis – be it in business, investments, or philanthropy.

The eastern part of the country is marked by high levels of poverty and there is much to be done to enable transformational change for people with both avoidable and irreversible vision loss. It was in response to this need that Sri Jagdish M Chanrai decided to support the transformation of LVPEI's Bhubaneswar campus into a centre of excellence. The support was extended in collaboration with the Kewalram Chanrai Group and the Enpee Group.

In appreciation of his support, the campus was named Mithu Tulsi Chanrai (MTC) Campus, after his father, Mithu Tulsi Chanrai, the patriarch of the Chanrai Summit Group.

Sri Jagdish M Chanrai believes, "If you have the right intentions and strive for excellence, others will join you, and if the essence comes from your heart, the forces of nature will be with you." The initial support for the MTC campus was provided by Operation Eyesight Universal, Canada.

Mithu Tulsi Chanrai Campus is connected to two vision centres - Banra and Kamalapur.
